President's Message

As I write this Message, it is a busy time for me. I hope everyone has filed his or her income tax return, and will get back a large refund.

Spring is right around the corner. First up is the ILNA Spring Show, hosted by the Rockford Coin Club, on May 20, 2001. The Show is almost sold out. You can contact Larry Kasberger for a table. Please come to the Hoffman House for the Show.

ILNA will have a table out in the lobby. The Spring Show will include, among other fun and informative activities, a numismatic talk and an ILNA Board meeting. The Show should be very successful based on the good people of the Rockford Coin Club. If the results from the first few Coin Shows of 2001 are a barometer, then this Show promises to be extremely successful.

Another important event is occurring in Illinois right now. The Illinois Quarter Program is in full swing. Governor George Ryan has announced a contest for the 2003 Illinois quarter. All Illinois students from grade kindergarten to grade twelve can participate. Eligible students can mail a brief paragraph describing their design idea, along with a drawing to the Governor's Office Of Citizens Assistance, Attention to The Illinois Commemorative Quarter Program, 222 South College, Room 106, Springfield, Illinois, 62706. The Governor and the First Lady of the State will assemble a committee of young people to pick the winning design this summer. The final design must be given to the U.S. Mint by October. For further details log on to our website at <http://ilna.davesworld.net> or log on to the State of Illinois website at <http://www.state.il.us/state/quarter/>. Please spread the word to any Illinois teacher or student you may know. This program has jump-started the hobby across the country, and now it is Illinois's turn.

While you are passing the word of the Illinois Quarter Program, pass along a good word about ILNA. Start by signing up new members. An application can be obtained by downloading it from our website or by contacting an ILNA officer or board member.

As I close this Message, please do not forget the Central States Numismatic Society annual Spring Show in Indianapolis, Indiana at the Convention Center April 6th to the 8th.

If you cannot attend the ILNA Show on May 20th or the Central States Show in April, please attend any or all other shows in your area. It is real easy. Just look at the extensive show listing in the back of this Digest. Find a show or shows in your area and attend. Trust me, you will have a fun and informative adventure.

What is Fractional Currency ?

By Tom F. X. O'Mara

In 1861, with the impending secession crisis near, much of the United States gold, silver and even copper coinage began to disappear. There was a tremendous amount of hoarding occurring as well as the outright melting down of coins. The intrinsic value of the precious metal found in the coins exceeded the face value of the coins themselves. This event occurs when 1) you have a high percentage of precious metal in coins, as the U.S. did in 1861 and 2) there is a high level of inflation present in the economy.

In 1861, the Silver in a Dime was worth
over 14 Cents.

Originally the shortage was mostly created by the hoarding effect which comes about due to fear and uncertainty. Eventually, during the Civil War, there were extreme levels of inflation, in both the North and the South. This was mainly due to the large amount of paper money issued to finance the war efforts, and eventually led to too much money chasing too few goods – INFLATION. At this point precious metals became dear and coins were melted.

The U.S. Treasury took notice of these strains near the beginning of the crisis. The U.S. Treasurer, General Francis E. Spinner, realized the coin shortage was causing considerable strain on businesses, and the various stopgap solutions being employed in the marketplace were not satisfactory. Merchants issued scrip, tokens, and eventually postage envelopes and encased postage stamps. Nothing was standard and nothing was government sanctioned – so confusion ran rampant.

U.S. postage stamps were widely recognized and became a real medium of exchange because they were government issued and had an intrinsic value – you could always mail a letter with one. The problem with stamps was two-fold: 1) the adhesive gum on the back would turn one's change into a gummy mess after a spell in your pocket, and 2) the U.S. Post Office was not prepared to take on the responsibility of "acting" U.S. Treasury.

Secretary of Treasury Salmon Chase proposed that the government would reduce the size of silver coins, and officially sanction the use of postage stamps as currency. President Lincoln signed this into law on July 17, 1862.

MAKING SENSE

by John D. Wright

Spanish culture posts a gain in Europe with the founding of the Prado Museum in Madrid to exhibit the Royal Art Collection. But in the Western Hemisphere, Spanish losses within her American Empire continue.

Chile proclaims her independence from Spain. Andrew Jackson's 3,000-man invasion of Spanish Florida concludes the "First Seminole War", forcing Spain to cede Florida to the US and to relinquish all Pacific Coast territory north of the 42nd parallel (California/Oregon border).

The Seminoles, though defeated this time, are still numerous. A generation later their vigorous defense of their territory will be called the "Second Seminole War" and will lead to their near-annihilation.

The "Savannah" becomes the first steamship to cross the Atlantic (26 days). The first steamboat on Lake Erie, the "Walk-In-The-Water", steams from Buffalo to Detroit. The American Fur Company opens a trading post on Lake Michigan. The site will later become the city of Milwaukee.

The US-Canadian border is established at the 49th parallel from the Great Lakes to the "crest of the Rocky Mountains". West of this, the wilderness is open territory. The burned-out Executive Mansion in the District of Columbia has been restored and is opened for a general reception on 1 January. The formerly-grey Mansion now sports several coats of gleaming white paint and will hereafter be called "the White House". It will take another several years to furnish it.

Illinois is admitted to the Union as the 21st state, its boundaries to include the village of Chicago. Slavery is prohibited by the new state's Constitution.

The design of the United States flag has been static since 1792 when there were fifteen states. After much discussion of many alternatives Congress sets the design of the US flag at thirteen horizontal stripes of alternating red and white (for the thirteen original states), with a blue field at the upper left containing one white star for each current state. On July 4th the 13-stripe, 20-star flag replaces the 15-stripe, 15-star "Old Glory" that had inspired Francis Scott Key in 1812. The flag gains a 21st star within months for Illinois, and will continue to gain another star during each of the next three years.

Fall Show Has New Home

Prestigious Countryside, IL

The ILNA Fall Coin Show & Convention keeps growing each year. Dealers come from around the country to sell their coins. Dealers fly in to buy coins for their customers and collectors from Illinois and surrounding states come to find their coins.

ILNA is one of the most aggressive state coin clubs in the United States. We have hosted the Central States Numismatic Society's Fall Coin Show & Convention several times. Attendance at our fall show keeps increasing each year. Dealers come back to our show after attending the Central States show because collectors recognize that the ILNA Fall Show is not a show to miss.

Now ILNA has taken a bigger step into the future. ILNA has moved it's fall show to prestigious Countryside, IL.

NOTES OF PRAISE

Elgin Coin Club's February Meeting

During the February club meeting, Elgin club members tested their grading skills on rare coins. If a member was not sure of the coins grade or just wanted another persons opinion of the grade. The club also wanted to see if the club could come to a consensus on the grade of coins.

This is an excellent way for club members to see that people can have their own opinion of a coin's grade. If ten people grade a coin, you may have three four different opinions of a grade.

This can be a valuable lesson for new collectors and a reminder for the old timers.

NOTES OF PRAISE

Chicago Coin Club's Show and Tell

During the club meetings, members enjoy a "Show and Tell" segment. Members learn with hands on experience. They see, touch and hear about different parts of the collecting hobby.

In February's meeting, members heard about exchange rates in Costa Rica, coins acquired during a recent trip to Italy, State bank notes, and a few other items.

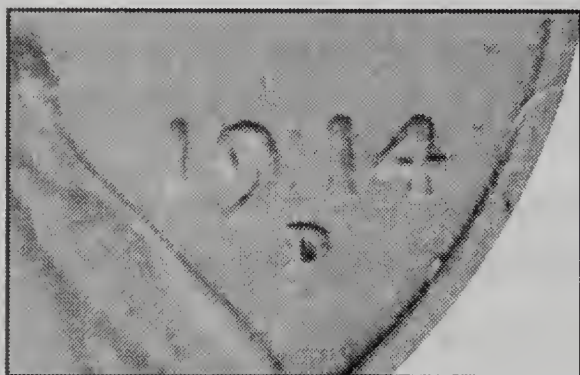

Getting members involved by sharing their special interest. Members that are involved in club meetings, stay active in the club. Sharing their interest and their special knowledge with other members.

Altered Coins

by Frank M. Zapushek

How many altered coins do you have in your collection? Many collectors never know until they start selling their collections. In this article, we will share with you some of the coins that collectors have brought to us for authentication. I will explain the method used to examine these coins.

The first coin is a 1914 D Lincoln cent. In AU condition, this coin sells for between $750 and $900. The AU specimen shown below should have sold for about $.50.

When examining the coin, we first notice the wide space between the number 9 and the second 1. The authentic 1914 D does not have this space.

On most examples of this altered coin, you can see the tooling marks that removed the portion of the first 4. If you can not see the tooling marks, then usually there is a lower field between the 9 and the second 1. Look at the spacing between the first 1 and the 9, then the spacing between the second 1 and the 4. This should make the spacing between the 9 and the second one jump out at you.

On a good altered coin, you will find no tooling marks, just the space between the 9 and the second 1. The field will not be lower between the numbers. But, the style of the "D" mintmark is different on the 1944 D Lincoln cent and the 1914 D. This coin has the wrong style mintmark for the 1914 D. Also remember that mintmarks can be glued onto a 1914 P to make it look like a 1914 D.

We can understand why dishonest people will alter a 1914 D. It can be sold for a nice sum of money. But why would someone alter a 1945 S to a 1915 S? An AU specimen of a 1915 S Lincoln cent only sells for between $55 and $75.

Maybe the dishonest person knows that the collector will not examine the 1915 S as carefully as he would a 1914 D. Maybe it is easier to sell four or five altered 1915 S coins than to sell one altered 1914 D.

This example is a very poor altered coin. Notice all the tooling marks between the 9

There was an immediate run on stamps and this was when U.S. Treasurer Spinner proposed the larger size non-adhesive postage currency note. He actually pasted some stamps on small pieces of cardboard with the motto of the Treasury of the United States on them, and thus presented his first mock up of postage currency to Chase for approval. The concept was accepted and the first issue of U.S. Postage Currency followed in 5, 10, 25, and 50 cent denominations.

In all, there were five series of United States Fractional Currency, as it later became known, to follow. Additional denominations of 3 and 15 cents were added. It is interesting to observe the adaptive nature of man in action during a crisis, and the origins of this collecting pastime was just that.

Tom F. X. O'Mara is the President of the Fractional Currency Collectors Board and the current owner of the most comprehensive Fractional Currency collection, including the only complete collection by Friedberg Number. The illustrations used in this article were created by Paul Burkhard.

The Fractional Currency Collectors Board (FCCB) was formed in 1983 by a group of fractional currency collectors at the Memphis International Paper Money Show. The FCCB is made up of men and women who are interested in the study and collecting of fractional currency. Current membership exceeds 300, with well over half currently active, and includes the best known collectors in the hobby.

More information about the Fractional Currency Collectors Board and Fractional Currency can be found on the clubs web page at :

Thin muslin dresses, low-cut and fitted, become the vogue for fashionable urban ladies. Editorial concern circulating about the new styles includes the questions: "Is this fashion in the best interest of the ladies' health? Are ladies in this attire in physical danger from fire? Do such dresses reflect the virtues of the wearer?". These demurrals have no impact on the popularity of the new styles.

And amid momentous events and trivial concerns of life in 1818, the US Mint in Philadelphia continues its assigned task of producing coin of the realm. Gold coinage is resumed and silver coinage is expanded to include quarter dollars. But the vast majority of the five million coins produced this year are of the old trade-staples: cents and half dollars. Both silver denominations of 1818 come with and without an underdate -- the quarter dollar with 1818 over 1815, and the half dollar with 1818 over 1817.

Since my interest is primarily in old US copper coins, let's examine the cents of 1818. With over three million struck, this is a common year. Nine obverse and eight reverse dies were used in ten marriages (varieties).

One variety of 1818 cent (N10) is VERY common since it comprised the majority of the Randall Hoard (1816-1820 cents, found and distributed in the late 1860's). This one is known by the thousands in and near Mint State. It has a prominent die crack through all of the stars.

Only two of the ten 1818 cent varieties are scarce. N2 is a bit scarce and is VERY popular due to its impressive die breaks above UNITED, eventually developing into a full cud (rimbreak) covering the tops of NITED and almost to S.

The scarcest cent of 1818 is N4, which is usually found with a heavily bulged obverse die. This one has a close date with first and last stars crowding it and a point of the first star pointing to the top serif of 1. Once thought to be "extremely rare", I have by now seen almost a hundred of this variety. But it took me ten years of diligent search to find my first one -- and it's the thrill of the chase that adds a special zest to our fascinating hobby.

John D. Wright is the author of "The CENT Book", which covers U.S. cents of 1816-1839. He has collected U.S. large cents for almost fifty years.

and the second 1. This coin also shows tooling marks above the second 1. This might be an attempt to make the alteration look like surface damage.

Next is a coin that everyone has heard about. The 1943 steel Lincoln cent plated in copper. The example shown to the left is a very good altered steel cent.

No signs of zinc or steel shows anywhere on the coin. The inside of the letters OD R B and inside the numbers 9 & 4 show no buildup of copper. This is the first place to look for signs that a coin has been plated. The inside of these letters and numbers will be filled with the plating and not well defined.

The first test is to weigh the coin on a gram scale. A steel cent should weigh 2.75 grams, while the copper cent weighs 3.11 grams. This coin weighed 3 grams, so it could be either a plated steel cent or the real McCoy.

The second test requires a very expensive piece of equipment. A magnet, any magnet, even a refrigerator magnet. Place it over the coin....if the coin jumps to the magnet it is steel plated with copper. Guess what, this coin jumped to the magnet.

When examining coins, think back to your days as a child. When your world first started to grow. Remember when your parents were teaching you to cross the street. Your parents instructed you to stop, look both ways and listen for cars.

I would recommend the same thing for your coins. Stop, examine all three sides of the coin and think!

If your are looking for a 1914 D Lincoln cent, take a 1913 D coin with you. Compare the D mintmark on the 1913 D to the D on the 1914 D. The same style of mintmark was used in both years. Also take a very close look at the area around the D mintmark. Is there any sign of glue or other foreign material around the mintmark? If the field around the mintmark looks different, do not buy the coin. Remember that the field around the mintmark should be as smooth as a babies bottom.

Your question could be the next article. No charge for authentication or questions. Hope to see you at an upcoming show!
